ESTROGEN-PROGESTIN AND TIBOLONE THERAPY USED FOR IMPROVING QUALITY OF LIFE IN POSTMENOPAUSE
A. Popescu, M. Manaila, D. Nanu

Objectives: The purpose of the abstract is to compare the effect of the two products in improved the quality of life of 29 subjects.
Methods: There was evaluated the intensity of climacteric syndrome and occurrence of adverse events at 29 patients who used combined hormone therapy or selective steroid receptor modulator.
Results: 26 cases has significant improvement of quality of life. Three patients experience major adverse events and discontinue therapy.
Conclusions: Both groups of patients with no adverse events showed improvement of quality of life.